Units have been designed to accommodate more than one group. Two-bedroom apartments can be used by two people (above left), by four undergraduate students (above center), or by a faculty member (above right). Below, a townhouse illustrates the same principles.