The working team expects to complete a rough draft of the Campus Sustainability plan by end of May.

Change agents concluded that the final mission statement will be:

"The University of California Santa Barbara is a responsible steward for our campus and community as well as a global leader for sustainability through education, research, and action."

New:

The Bren School California Climate Neutral (CCN) group presented their findings on UCSB CO2 emissions and their six main recommendations. The formalization of an Office of Sustainability was discussed as a recommendation. CCN stated the recommendation for formalizing an office was added in response to a request for it, and they felt it was a positive idea. However, the cost of such an office was not included in the cost/benefit analysis. Marc stated he thought it was premature to recommend an Office of Sustainability as there has been no cost analysis done by anyone but the original Lot 38 group, and the CPC and/or the Sustainability sub-committee would need to look at that. Marc felt the other five recommendations were possible in the immediate future and asked if we would like to make a recommendation that UCSB makes a commitment to meet the California Governors Greenhouse Gas emissions (GHG). CCN is going to draft a recommendation and email it to Perrin.

Shari Hammond went over the outline for the sustainability plan. The first half has already been developed; once templates are received the rest of the plan can be finished.

Each group reported progress towards their goals.

Groups, please email updated templates to Perrin for web posting.
